Staggering Spells on the Heart Disease Came From La Grippe.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

"Some years ago I contracted a severe case of La Grippe. I do not know at what stage the heart became affected, but the symptoms became so pronounced in time that there was no doubt as to what my trouble was. I suffered severely from shortness of breath, from pain around my heart, nervousness and from pain in my left shoulder and arm. My hands became badly swollen and I was very miserable. I had a number of blind or staggering apells on the street, when I would have to clutch at something for support until the faint and helpless feeling passed off. To complicate the trouble I was in misery most of the time from constipation. Well, I began using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills, and I can't tell you how much good they did me. I am not now troubled with the heart symptoms or nervousness, and the Nerve and Liver Pills are so mild and easy of action that I consider them the best remedy for constipation." JAMES R. FLUENT, Co. B, 179th N. Y. V. I., Bath, N. Y. La Grippe's power is shown oftenest in its after effects. Then, when the heart has the least vitality, it is called upon for extra labor and to withstand the strain of disease. The nerves are weakened so that they cannot defend the system against disease. Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure strengthen the nerves and heart, and endow the system with resistive power to withstand the

Miss Boardman's Rejoinder to Mr. Phillips' Letter.

MRS. LOGAN FIRST PROPOSED MISS BARTON'S RETIREMENT.

A Protest Against Suspension From Membership Without a Hearing.

The controversy over the proposed reorgress at the last session by a number of the members of that organization, continues to develop interesting phases. Last Monday's issue of The issued on behalf of the executive commit-Mabel Boardman of this city from membersent to Mr. Phillips a lengthy letter on the proposition to retire Miss Clara Barton from the active to a honorary presidency of the Red Cross with annuity did not originate with Miss Boardman, but with Mrs. John A. Logan. It was Miss Boardman's letter based. In her letter to Mr. Phillips, Miss Boardman quotes his letter to her announcing her suspension and her letter to Mrs. Logan of February 20 in reference to the retirement of Miss Barton, both of which were printed in Monday's Star, and continues, referring to the latter letter under date of February 20, in part as follows: Breach of Confidence Charged.

"This was an entirely personal letter to Mrs. Logan and part of a confidential correspondence, but in no event can any fair interpretation be put upon it that will justify your extraordinary action. It, as you well know, but expresses the views of the twenty-three members of the Red Cross who signed the memorial to Congress of January 29. It was written privately to a friend of Miss Barton, intended to further and promote the expressed views of that friend. Of course I did not expect to see it made public, though I had been in fact some time since warned as to the probable exercise of the power of suspension by the executive committee as now composed under the new by-laws against one who should be so bold as to criticise the methods of expenditure that had been previously fol-lowed, although such criticism had the single worthy purpose of reforming those methods. Nowhere in the letter singled out for publication, or in any other of the let-ters constituting the confidential correspondence with Mrs. Logan is there a sin-gle expression of mine that can be fairly strued as reflecting in any manner on whom I had had numberless conversations on the subject. The letter was confidential, part of a confidential correspondence. Mrs. Logan had no right to give it to yau and you had no right to use it in any way

Mrs. Logan Made the First Move. "Mrs. Logan had written me letters, dated which will be seen she claims to have made these 'remarkable propositions,' which Mr. main purport of my letter was to indicate to her, as Miss Barton's friend, that her, Mrs. Logan's, suggestions were about to materialize. The statements in my letter pertain chiefly to the annuity. These are to be construed in connection with other expressions of mine in the same correspondence with Mrs. Logan contained in letters in which I set forth the meaning and purpose of the whole of this protest against what were deemed the unbusinesslike meth

"Holly Hills Farm, AVENEL, Md., February 2, 1903. 'My Dear Miss Boardman: out in the country, where I have been called to attend to some preparations for the spring planting. This will convince you that am more interested in the farm than I am I am more interested in the farm than I am in the deplorable controversy that is going on in the Red Cross, which I cannot help thinking could have been avoided, if the suggestion which I made to you last fall had been carried out, and I believe now, if we could in some way raise a fund which would produce a suitable income that would give Miss Barton some recognition for her give Miss Barton some recognition for her ife-long service in the cause of humanity that she would be willing to retire. * * "I shall always feel that too much has been said about the Galveston matter and been said about the Galveston matter and not enough about the expenditures of the board of control. If one was wrong the other was, but I hope, my dear Mabel, that you and I may not become bad friends because we differ about the policy that should be adopted by the Red Cross. If with your wonderful ability and abundant wealth you would only start a fund for the wealth you would only start a fund for the Red Cross, the income from which would be devoted to giving Miss Barton maintenance in a dignified and proper way and to providing suitable apartments for her in connection with the offices of the Red Cross, connection with the olines of the Red Cross, I am quite sure that she would be only too glad to accept the honorable position of retired president and give her advice and best thought to the success of the Red Cross, which is her idol. wealthy friends there might be raised at once a handsome fund for the Red Cross to be used, as I suggest, and after her death it would, of course, continue to be productive of great good for this incomparable organization.

Miss Boardman's Reply. My reply to this is as follows:

"I hope, indeed, that a wise and amicable adjustment of Red Cross matters can be brought about. Believe me, there is no desire for one moment to humiliate Miss Barton or to withdraw from her any honor due her for past services in the interest of due her for past services in the interest of humanity. The men here who are interested actively in this effort are a sufficient guarantee that there is nothing personal intended. There is a widespread interest in the building up of an organization in this country. Since the United States signed country. Since the United States signed the treaty in 1882, nearly twenty-one years ago, there has been ample time to have created a large and able organization, but one does not exist. Letters have come from very prominent men in some of our large cities, men who stand for wealth and influence, stating their interest in this present effort, and criticising the former business methods of the Red Cross.

"I feel that by accepting the position of honorary president for life, with an annuity given as a token of appreciation of her past services, Miss Barton will be placed in a most dignified and honorable position, and see the Red Cross become an organization in which the men of the highest standing in the community at large will take an will feel the wisdom of this. Miss Barton will be honored, taken care of, and the Red Cross will prosper. Otherwise I feel it cannot be a power in this country, and will go down rather than up. We must work for it, and by so doing it will become truly an honor to the work and interest Miss Barton has given-it."

Another Letter From Mrs. Logan. Mrs. Logan writes in answer to this: FEBRUARY 13, 1903.

'Confidential."

"My Dear Friend:
"I hope you will pardon me if remind you that it was my desire last fall to secure some such propositions as now seem imminent in the case of Miss Barton. I have nent in the case of Miss Barton. I have always been willing to join in the effort to induce Miss Barton that the best interest of the Red Cross might be obtained if a suitable person (certainly not one of those who have been trying to crucify her) were to take the active presidency of the Red Cross, providing a suitable and proper recognition was given for her services, which have been Herculean. I should have continued to oppose any effort at her displacement which did not provide handsomely for her.

"Now, dear Mabel, I am going to ask you to do something that will help me to ac-complish what I am trying to do; that is, as you had much to do with Mr. Gillette's action in the matter will you not get him to withdraw the memorial which he has filed and have the whole thing expunged from the records of Congress. It is manifestly unkind to her, and in the great future some miscreant might bring these records up to blacken her name and her fame. I do not believe that Mr. Gillette or any person signing the petition really wished to pain her, and that it was intended more for the persons associated with her, but upon the face of it she is the one affected, while those who deserved overhauling es-caped being mentioned. I hope that you will make haste to get the written promise from Mr. Gillette that he will do this and thereby exonorate Miss Barton, as he sure-ly can have no animosity toward her."

The Publication of the Memorial. In reply to this letter I wrote as follows:

Dear Mrs. Logan: "I waited before replying to your letter of February 13 to see Mr. Gillette in regard o the memorial to Congress. Mr. Gillette tells me this cannot be withdrawn once having been printed by order of Congress, but Miss Barton's friend, Mr. Kehoe, whom she sent to see me a week or so ago, tells me that he does not think this memorial is printed in any Record, only a note having been made of it. As he is an official steographer at the House he ought to know, the Record after all. "You will see by the copy of the memo-rial, which I inclose that it is a statement nerely of facts, with no attack upon Miss Barton's character. The fact that certain actions occurred and certain by-laws were passed and still exist, cannot be gainsaid. but there is, as I have said, no desire to personally humiliate Miss Barton.

"I tried my best to prevent the present state of affairs, as you know, by going to see Mr. Atwater at Meriden, Conn., last fall, by talking the matter over with you, by writing Dr. Hubbell asking him to come to see me, and when no attention whatever was paid to this letter, by writing to Milss Barton asking if Dr. Hubbell would not come to see me, and again the courtesy of an answer was not given me. I would most gladly have done more to bring about an amicable adjustment beforehand, but all my efforts were ignored.

'Now, I know, dear Mrs. Logan, that a public-spirited woman like yourself must and will feel a patriotic interest in the Red Cross of our country. It is natural and right that you should desire to guard the nterest of an old friend like Miss Barton, but this truly cannot better be done than by the way we have talked over. Miss Barton, herself I feel sure is deeply concerned about the Red Cross, and would regret to see it so discredited with the public as to lose its usefulness. It must have money to do its work. At the time of the Galveston trouble over $1,300,000 was contributed, but the Red Cross of this amount had only about $17,000, a little over 1 per cent. The chamber of commerce of New York gave $65,000, but did not place one penny of this in the hands of the Red Cross, having lost such faith in this organiation. Such a condition of affairs must not exist if the Red be built up and made a monument to Miss Barton's efforts in its behalf in the past, and that she herself will be honored and carries out what she so long has stated to be her wish, a retirement from the active presidency."

Mrs. Logan to Mr. Foster.

This was followed by my letter of Febuary 20, after I had learned Miss Barton had gone to Boston to consult Mr. Olney, and an appointment made through Mrs. Logan for a conference with the following Red Cross members-Mr. John W. Foster, president of the Riggs National Bank; Charles J. Bell, president of the American Security and Trust Company, and Mr. Thomas F. Walsh had been broken, Mrs. Logan, writing to Mr. Foster—"Finding that poor Miss Barton was too ill to come over for some days, I took advantage of the time to come out to my farm." I also insert a portion of Mrs. Logan's let-ter to Mr. John W. Foster, in regard to the roposition she requested him to formu-" • • • I hope she (Miss Barton) will be over soon, but if she is unable to come I will get her written authority to act for her, so that we may be able to get this whole painful matter settled. Please formu-late a proposition and get the signatures to the guarantee of the annuity or whatever you wish to denominate the sum to be paid her quarterly and I will undertake to get her agreement to accept and call the soclety together for the election of an active president, etc. Please consider some name for this position so that at the conference which we will hold in any event the whole thing may be prepared and understood by her. Thanking you for your goodness in this matter and hoping you can aid Miss Boardman in securing the withdrawal of the memorial introduced by Mr. Gillette and the expunging of the whole thing from Mr. Foster's reply to this confidential letter of Mrs. Logan she gave out for publication, and it appears in the memorial of Walter P. Phillips and others. [It was printed in Monday's Star.] No Attack on Miss Barton.

No loss of confidence in Miss Barton's personal integrity is meant, but only that there was on the part of many liberal and public-spirited people a lack of faith in the ousiness methods of some of the people she business methods of some of the people she had felt herself compelled to rely on. Out of this lack of business methods has grown the whole movement and the desire, which I shared with others, to place the business methods of this great organization upon a high plane that it ought to occupy.

My endeavors in this matter have been entirely impersonal, and I have been animated solely by the spirit that I feel animates the other ladies and gentlemen who have joined in the protest against the new have joined in the protest against the new

Miss Boardman's Suspension. I understand that the procedure against me is taken under article V, section 4, of the new by-laws, as follows:

"The executive committee shall have the right, for good and sufficient cause, to suspend temporarily or permanently from office or membership any officer or member of this corporation, but before this suspension shall be made permanent the accused shall have reasonable oppor-tunity to be heard before the executive committee regarding the cause of suspen-sion, the action of which committee shall be subject to an appeal to the annual meet-subject to an appeal to the annual meeting."

This executive committee is appointed by the president, and she is chairman. The appeal will be to the next annual meeting, and as a suspended member I have an especial interest in knowing who are the members to pass upon this matter as final judges. On three different occasions, all prior to the date of your letter of March 13. I attempted to find out the names of the present members of the society. The secretary, as will appear from my letter to him and his reply, has been unable to comply with my request.

The first notice I get of any intended proceedings against me is that you have already decided to suspend me from active membership. A notice to me of the charges would have brought forth the cor-respondence of which the letter you publish is but a detached part, and from all this it clearly appears that I was making no "attack upon the president of the Red Cross," but only criticising, while carefully excluding her, the methods of some of those by whom she had been surrounded. 2. I protest that it is your committee and not I who have made an attack on Miss Barton. You detach from its place in a correspondence, all of which must have been at your command, and you publish to the world a single letter, which, in your judgment, is, when Cross is to be worthy of our country. I an attack on Miss Barton's character. In feel the American National Red Cross can reply I give the correspondence which. an attack on Miss Barton's character. In taken together, shows that no such assault was made or intended.

3. Your unwarranted charge against me is shifting the issue from criticisms, which have been made of the methods of some of those whose services Miss Barton has availed herself, to the character of Miss Barton, which nobody has assailed. Not Responsible for Retirement Plan. 4. The correspondence given above refutes the statement your committee has published that the minority is responsible alone for the idea of Miss Barton's acceptance of the place of honorary president. It shows that the idea of making Miss Barton honorary president for life, and providing a salary for her, was not confined to what you call the "small minority" who had criticised certain methminority" who had criticised certain methods, but that the very member of the majority who gave out my letter had herself suggested the plan; and certainly she could only have conceived it because of her knowledge of the facts set-forth in that correspondence, that the public had largely lost faith, not in Miss Barton, but in the hustness methods of those who surthe business methods of those who sur-rounded her. In Mrs. Logan's letter of the 13th of February she expresses the opinion that "the best interest of the Red Cross might be obtained" if a suitable person were to take the active presidency and a suitable recognition given of her (Miss Barton's) "services, which have been herculean." And in her letter of Febru-ary 2 Mrs. Logan says of Miss Barton, "I am quite sure she would be only too glad to accept the honorable position of retired president, etc." I remain, Yours respectfully, MABEL T. BOARDMAN.

KENESAW AVENUE NUMBERS. District Government Causes an Opinion to Be Rendered. The Mount Pleasant Citizens' Association recently forwarded to the District Commissioners a resolution requesting an amendment of the house numbering rule in vogue in Kenesaw avenue between 14th and 16th There is no 15th street in this locality, and the Commissioners had ordered that the 1,500 numbers should begin at the alley near the center of the square. The resolu tion suggested that the dividing line should be at the point where School street will intercept when extended.

It was claimed that this method would make the numbers in Kenesaw avenue conform to those in the other streets running in the same direction in, the neighborhood. The matter was referred by the Commissioners to the building department and a report has been made by Inspector Ashford, in which he says:

report has been made by Inspector Ashford, in which he says:

"It will be seen that on account of the frontage of Kenesaw avenue between 14th and 16th streets (there being no 15th or intermediate street) the house numbers will run into the 1500 figures. In order to avoid this it was recommended that the numbers from 14th street west to a public alley running north and south and intersecting Kenesaw avenue be in the 1400 class, and from the alley west to 16th street in the 1500 class, as we have found by experience that the breaking of numbers in the middle of a block causes confusion and annoyance.

"Notices were accordingly sent to the property owners to make the changes where found necessary. As School street has as yet not been extended, nor do I know when it will be, I would recommend that the numbers be placed as directed until School street is cut through, when further examination will be made and report submitted as to the method of assigning house numbers in this locality."

Col. John Biddle, the Engineer Commissioner, has recommended that the object of

"In a section which is only partly built up," he continues, "it has been the custom to allow six numbers for every 100 feet. As the block in Kenesaw avenue between 14th and 16th streets as projected is about 900 feet long, it will require something more than the numbers between 1400 and 1500. The extension of School street has not yet been authorized by Congress, and there is no certainty that it will be.
